Public opinion split in half about wielding illegitimate influence over custom authorities. GILANI POLL/GALLUP PAKISTAN

Islamabad, September 17, 2014

According to a Gilani Research Foundation Survey carried out by Gallup Pakistan, 50% Pakistanis would use their contacts to request the release of a friend who has been caught by custom authorities; 49% would not.

A nationally representative sample of adult men and women, from across the four provinces was asked, "Suppose that one of your friends has been caught by custom authorities at the airport for transporting some goods illegally. Coincidentally you are also friends with a senior officer in customs, so he and his luggage can be released through your request. Will you make a request on his behalf?" Responding to this question 50% Pakistanis said yes, they will make a request on behalf of any friend who has been caught by custom authorities for transporting goods illegally if they could get him released. On the other hand, 49% Pakistanis will not make any such request and 1% did not respond.
