MAJORITY HAS MIXED FEELINGS ABOUT THE STABILITY OF THE NEXT GOVERNMENT - NOVEMBER 8, 2002

According to a recent survey conducted by Gallup Pakistan majority of Pakistanis have mixed feelings about the stability and strength of the Government emerging out of its recent elections.

These findings have emerged from a nation wide survey carried out in the rural and urban areas of all the four provinces of the country, which posed the question: “What are the chances that the next government will be a stable and strong government: high, mild or very little?”

Only 19% gave it a high chance, 63% gave mild or mixed chance while 16% were completely pessimistic and saw very little chance of a stable and strong government. The remaining 2% did not give a view.

The survey was conducted by Gallup Pakistan, the Pakistani affiliate of Gallup International among more than 1500 statistically selected households in both urban and rural areas of all the four provinces of Pakistan. The sample comprised a cross section of various income, education and geographic segments. The text of this report can also be seen on the internet at: www.gallup.com.pk.
