(GALLUP & GILANI PAKISTAN POLL)

Islamabad, May 11, 2017

According to a Gilani Research Foundation Survey carried out by Gallup & Gilani Pakistan, 57% Pakistanis believe it is men and not women who get angry more.

A nationally representative sample of men and women from across the four provinces was asked, “With respect to the characteristics found in men and women, please tell are the following characteristics found mostly in men or women [Do men get angry more or women]?” In response to this question, 57% said that men get angry more, while 43% said that women get angry more.

Gender Breakdown:

In response to this question, 58% males said men get angry more, while 42% said women. On the other hand, 55% females said men get angry more, while 45% said women.

The gender breakdown of results illustrates that 16% more males say that men get more angry; similarly, 10% more females hold the same opinion.

Question: “With respect to the characteristics found in men and women, please tell are the following characteristics found mostly in men or women [Do men get more angry or women]?”
