Introduction to the series on Gallup Pakistan Electoral Repository:

This press release is part of a special press release that aims to provide the readers interesting findings from Gallup Pakistan's electoral database. Empirical analysis of elections in Pakistan is quite restricted and the Gallup Pakistan Exit Poll, on which this press release is based, is the only Exit Poll in the country providing a window into the minds of Voters on issues like who voted for whom and why? The Gallup Pakistan Electoral Repository program aims to fill this void of dearth of data in anticipation of the 11th General Elections in the country. The press releases, as part of this programme, are geared towards academics and policy makers as well as voters for the next general and provincial elections. For more information on the programme please contact Gallup Pakistan (isb@gallup.com.pk).

Abstract

Election 2013 saw a surge of political campaigning on television. It is of great interest to analyse the effect of political media campaigning on the voting decision of people. Gallup Pakistan Exit Poll (Election Day Survey) analysis suggests that 84% respondents watch TV, 43% respondents are somewhat interested in the election symbols advertised by political parties through advertisements on TV, 85% respondents said that it did not affect or change their vote.

TV Viewership: Majority (56%) voters are regular viewers of television

The Gallup Pakistan Exit Poll (Election Day Survey) asked a nationally representative sample of voters on the Election Day, "Normally, how much TV do you watch in one week?" In response to this question, 56% said they watch TV regularly, 28% said they watch TV occasionally and 16% said they do not watch TV.

Question: "Normally, how much TV do you watch in one week?"

Switching Behaviour: PTI topped as a party benefitting from media campaigning. For some this meant an increase in votes, for others it meant a reduction in vote bank.

Political Media campaigns played a noteworthy role in changing voting decisions of voters. Among the 11% voters who changed their voting decision due to political media campaign on television, PTI gained 15% vote bank due to the political campaigning on television. On the other hand, PML (N) and PPP have lost -8% and -13% of their vote bank respectively.

Question: “If your voting decision changed, who did you want to vote for before?”

	Voted for on Election Day
	Percent share in Gain and Loss
Switching Behaviour	PML (N)	PTI	PPP
Switched To (Gain)	28	33	9
Switched Away (Loss)	36	18	22
Net Gain	-8	+15	-13
Net Loss	-0.96	+1.80	-1.56
