Like the 12% of the global population that does not consider global warming to be a serious threat to mankind, 10% Pakistanis think the same way. Alternatively, 74% Pakistanis do not hold such beliefs. This figure is lower than the global average of 85%. Vietnam, South Korea and Chile are the top three countries where majority of the people believe that global warming is a grave threat for mankind.

The study was released by Gilani Research Foundation and carried out by Gallup & Gilani Pakistan, the Pakistani affiliate of Gallup International. The recent survey was carried out among a sample of 1,103 men and women in urban and rural areas of all four provinces of the country, during November 5, 2020 – November 15, 2020. The error margin is estimated to be approximately $\pm 2-3$ percent at the 95% confidence level. The methodology used for data collection was CATI. Respondents hailed from over 100 districts of Pakistan.
