Despite challenges, most Pakistanis still express pride in their national identity, jumping from 4% to 12% who express a lack of pride or embarrassment between 1999 and 2024: Gallup & Gilani History Project Findings

(Islamabad) 23rd October, 2024

According to a survey conducted by Gallup & Gilani Pakistan, sentiments of national pride among Pakistanis have fluctuated over the years. This year, 2024, 3 out of 4 Pakistanis reported feeling "a lot" of pride in their country. For the past two decades, Gallup Pakistan has been asking nationally representative samples of adult men and women the following question: "Please tell me how much pride you feel in being a Pakistani." This tracking of national pride has shown varying sentiments throughout the years.

Comparative Picture: In 2024, 73% of respondents stated they felt a lot of pride in being Pakistani, while 15% felt somewhat proud. The survey also revealed that 6% did not feel any pride, and 6% expressed embarrassment regarding their national identity.

Trend Analysis: In 1998, 76% of respondents reported feeling a lot of pride in being Pakistani, with 18% feeling somewhat proud. By 2000, the percentage of those feeling a lot of pride increased to 80%, while 14% felt somewhat proud.

However, the data showed a decline in pride in subsequent years, with 62% expressing a lot of pride in 2009 and 60% in 2011. In 2012, the figures dropped further, with only 56% saying they felt a lot of pride (lowest point in the 2.5 decades), while 30% felt somewhat proud. This decline coincided with periods of government instability, declining economic conditions, and security concerns between 2009 and 2014, which may have impacted national sentiment. Despite these challenges, in 2016, 61% reported feeling a lot of pride, while 24% felt somewhat proud, 9% did not feel any pride, and 5% expressed embarrassment. There was a notable resurgence in 2017 when 75% reported feeling a lot of pride. These findings indicate that, despite ongoing issues, patriotism remains alive among many Pakistanis.

This press release has been made as part of the Gallup Pakistan History Project which aims to release historical empirical polling data to wider audiences. The objective is to sustain and encourage empirical decision-making in Pakistan.

The study in Pakistan was conducted and released by Gallup & Gilani Pakistan, the Pakistani affiliate of Gallup International. The recent survey was carried out among a sample of 769 men and women in urban and rural areas of all four provinces of the country, conducted from 28th June - 10th July 2024. The error margin is estimated to be approximately $\pm 2-3$ percent at the 95% confidence level. The methodology used for data collection was telephonic surveys (CATI).

Aim and Rationale for Gallup Pakistan History Project

Bilal I Gilani, who is the Executive Director at Gallup Pakistan, and the Director of Gallup Pakistan History Project explains the aim of the Project as follows: “Gallup Pakistan has been polling in Pakistan since 1979 (over 40 years). During this time, millions of Pakistanis have been surveyed by over a thousand interviewers of Gallup. In 2014, Gallup Pakistan decided to release historical Public Opinion data and this Press Release is part of Gallup Pakistan’s History Project. This endeavor is dedicated to all those who hope for a more empirical understanding of Pakistani Issues”. For more information about the Gallup History Project, please contact caf@gallup.com.pk
