EDITOR'S NOTE

Dear Readers,

October 2024 has been another busy month for Gallup Pakistan, and we're excited to share our latest updates and Insights with you.

We released 22 daily polls covering themes such as Politics, Social Behavior, Consumer, and Demographics. These polls were based on responses from a nationally representative sample across Pakistan, providing a broad view of public opinion. We also released 4 history polls covering topics like milk consumption, governance systems, institutional performance, and national pride.

The 58th edition of the FinDev Cyber Letter focused on wider fintech developments, exploring the latest trends and innovations shaping the financial technology landscape.

Three reports were released in October as part of the Big Data Analysis series. The first report focused on the gender gap in school attendance, utilizing data from the Census 2023. The second report explored the other crops grown across Mouzas, based on the Mouza Census 2020 data. The third report also examined important irrigation and water course improvement schemes across Mouzas, using the Mouza Census 2020 data.

WIN World Survey global report and press release on technology were also released on Gallup Pakistan platforms.

A new dashboard titled Mouza Census Insights was also launched on the Gallup Pakistan Digital Analytics website. This new dashboard provides valuable data visualizations and insights related to agricultural practices and infrastructure at the Mouza level.

A monthly update from the Flight Dashboard was also released, covering the monthly flight trends for September 2024.

Bilal Gilani, Executive Director Gallup Pakistan gave a talk at the Aga Khan University Faculty of Arts and Sciences on the topic of "Understanding Social Change in Pakistan", while survey data on economic conditions and mother tongue language trends have been discussed across social media and electronic media channels.

Thank you for your continued interest in our work. We look forward to sharing our latest findings and analyses with you.

Dramatic Decline of Punjabi Speakers in Pakistan, Gallup & Gilani findings discussed on Native Media.

A notable trend emerging from Gallup's 25-year analysis of census data is the decline in the number of Punjabi speakers in Pakistan. This shift is attributed to a range of factors, including social, economic, and political pressures. Discussions also highlighted the role of Urdu colonization and the reluctance of many Punjabis to identify their native language in the census. These findings shed light on the evolving linguistic landscape of Pakistan. Native Media discussed these findings from Gallup & Gilani Pakistan's recent survey.

FAQs

You Never Come to My Home?

You Never Come to My Home- Our opinion polls start with a computer program that generates a random sample of all possible Rural and Urban locations in the country. The survey is designed so that every Household in Pakistan has the same probability of getting the call. So why haven't you been visited by Gallup? Because it's a big country, with lots of Homes. You've got better odds of getting hit by lightning. The key point is that your odds of getting visited by our interviewer are precisely the same as everyone else's. The principle of random sampling makes polls truly democratic. We don't speak with any pre-determined individual or group. It can be absolutely anyone - you and me, your Aunt Rasheeda in Toba Tek Singh, your local Imam, the lady across the lunch counter, the guy pounding fenders - anyone. That's why we think that a good poll, honestly done, represents the true voice of average Pakistanis in a unique and irreplaceable way.
